

FOR PRESIDENT.
JAS. G. BLAINE,
OF MAINE.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT.
JOHN A. LOGAN,
OF ILLINOIS.

BUTLER AND THE DEMOCRACY.

The old and somewhat homely adage, "It makes a deal of difference whose ox is gored," is peculiarly pertinent at this time in its application to the dilemma in which the Democracy find themselves in regard to the candidacy of General Butler. Having received three nominations, Butler appears as a delegate to the Democratic Convention and asks the fourth nomination at its hands. If he does not receive it what will he do? Will he renounce the other three, which he has already accepted, and thereby virtually pledged himself to stand as a candidate, and support the Democratic ticket; or will he carry out his pledged faith with the Greenbackers, Anti-Monopolists and Labor Reformers, and make a campaign on the issues presented by their several platforms which he has already endorsed. Should he pursue the latter course the effect must prove disastrous to the Democracy. The leading organs of the party are already becoming alarmed, and are anxious for information as to Butler's intentions, which it is needless to say they do not get. An amusing feature of the situation is that they declare, with a show of indignation, that it will be dishonorable in General Butler to refuse to support the Democratic nominee, after having sat as a delegate in the convention; and that having participated in its deliberations and actions he is in duty bound by all of the ethics of political honor to support its candidate. Now, this is good advice, and we are pleased to see the Democratic papers preaching it, for it shows that they have very recently undergone a creditable change of heart. It is but a few weeks since that they were all commending the action of George William Curtis and his associates bolters, and assuaging the right and duty of good citizens to ignore mere party rules when their strict observance became a tax upon the individual conscience. In their professed admiration for the "manly" course of the bolters they out-Christ'd George William himself. No praise could be called out of their vocabulary too fulsome to bestow upon these "independent gentlemen." Now, we are not at all concerned as to the relations existing or which may exist, between the Democracy and Butler. With his pocket full of nominations, including that of the Chicago convention, he could never be elected. But in their strictures upon Butler they are advising him to a more dishonorable course than the one they apprehend he may take. They propose nothing more nor less than that Butler shall sell out his friends. In the event of his not receiving the Chicago nomination they insist that he must renounce those with whom he is in sympathy, whose principles he has repeatedly indorsed and fought for, and who have with a remarkable unanimity placed their unreserved confidence in him as their leader. General Butler is too good a soldier to desert his enthusiastic and faithful followers on the eve of a battle. Such an act would destroy his political hopes for the future. The Greenbackers, Anti-Monopolists and Labor Reformers forced the Massachusetts Democracy to nominate him and but for their united aid he could not have been elected Governor of that State. They are composed of elements from both the national parties. The proposition of these Democrats who are criticising the position of General Butler, is simply this: that he shall permit himself to be made a cats paw to pull these chestnuts out of the fire for the benefit of the Democratic monkey, and burn his fingers in order that the party which repudiates him may capture the honors and the spoils. If there is anything in Butler's antecedents that may seem to justify them in assuming him to be so dishonorable or so green as their suggestions would imply, we fail to call it to mind.

Watterson's tariff plank is foreshadowed in the dispatches:—"You take the buzzard, and I'll take the turkey, or I'll take the turkey and you take the buzzard." A happy compromise with the Randalites.

Dr. H—n advises the formation of National Clubs. If a wooden club is admitted and the Dr. "stuffed," then there will be two good members to start off with.

The presentation of Bartholdi's great Statue of Liberty, a gift from the people of France to those of the United States, took place in Paris on the Fourth, Minister Morton being instructed by the President to accept it in behalf of this Nation. The statue is the greatest work of the kind ever undertaken, the Colossus of Rhodes being but a pigmy in comparison. It is the intention to set the statue at the entrance to New York harbor, on Bedloe's Island. Facing the sea, the statue will serve the double purpose of a light tower for the guidance of incoming ships and a type of the grandeur of the New World, in its physical features and its political institutions and influence. Bedloe's Island is small, yet ample for the intended purpose. It will furnish a base for the statue, perhaps twenty feet or so above the water. On this will rest the pedestal 110 feet high. The statue to the flame of the torch in the uplifted right hand is 145 feet high. This will make the light at least 275 feet above the level of New York bay, making it visible many miles at sea. The statue is cast in bronze, in pieces of manageable size, to be riveted together when erected upon its permanent site.

The money for the statue was raised by popular subscription among the people of France, in appreciation of the sympathy and diplomatic service rendered by the United States during the investment of Paris. Singular as it may seem, it has been impossible thus far to raise enough money in this country with which to erect the pedestal upon which the statue is to stand. With all our boasted liberality, the American people cannot be induced to contribute their money except upon moments of enthusiasm, or when their feelings and sympathies are deeply stirred. Their worship of George Washington was never an incentive to the completion of the monument to his memory by popular subscription, the experiment having been repeatedly tried and always with unsuccessful results, and there it has stood unfinished, bearing resemblance to a lime kiln chimney, through nearly half a century, a disgrace to the Nation, while ten times the sum necessary to complete it has been expended in pomp and display and noise in the celebration of Washington's birthday, until it finally became necessary for Congress to make an appropriation from the National Treasury for its completion.

In the present instance it would be a National shame if the pedestal is not prepared for the statue with the necessary promptitude, and it is at least humiliating that there should be any cause for doubt on this point.

If the best man God ever made ran for the Presidency, he would have to wade chin-deep through obloquy. The first target was put up two weeks ago, and the next will be put up two weeks hence. The target with the most holes in it will be elected President. Defamation elected Garfield, Lincoln, and Jackson. As soon as a man achieves anything by brilliancy, eloquence, or statesmanship, all the hounds of hell are turned against him.—The Rev. Dr. Talmage

The material and good-will of the weekly San Francisco, which suspended publication a fortnight ago, has been purchased by William P. Harrison, who will reissue it, the first number coming out on the 19th of the present month. There will be a complete change in the politics, however, and in other particulars. The editorial management will be entrusted to Arthur McEwen.

The President has nominated John A. Kasson, of Iowa, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Germany; Alphonse Taft, of Ohio, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Russia; John M. Francis, of New York, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Austria and Hungary.

In the River and Harbor Bill just passed by Congress $25,000 is appropriated for the improvement of the Colorado, and the fact established that Nevada has a river if not a harbor. If a like appropriation is made annually for a few years the Colorado will be made navigable up to its junction with the Rio Virgin, in Lincoln county.

Five of the Democratic nominees, a majority, for Electors in California, have sent in their resignations to the State Central Committee. The Democracy are having a lively boom, but it seems to be going the wrong way.

Blaine is waiting for the Democratic Convention to be held before he writes his letter of acceptance. He is a shrewd politician and does not intend to let any points escape him.

We don't hear so much about "Beast" Butler from the Democratic side of the House to-day. Wonder what has become of him.

If Butler is nominated the South will have to come down to spoon victuals.

It was ordered that $300 be expended on the road from Willow Springs to the California State line, under the supervision of Thomas Eagar.

It was ordered that no one be allowed to haul a greater load than 15,000 pounds over the Wadsworth bridge.

In the matter of repairing the Mayberry bridge the Board refused to consider the bids presented and authorized the Chairman of the Board to prepare plans and specifications of the work required and submit them at the next session of the Board.

E. M. Thompson was authorized to expend $75 on the road from the English mill to Deep Wells.

A Good Appointment.

Ex-Senator W. D. C. Gibson, through the influence of Senator Jones, has been appointed Indian Agent for Nevada with headquarters at the Pyramid Reservation. The people of Nevada will regard this as an excellent appointment. Mr. Gibson is a Pacific Coast pioneer, and having spent an average lifetime among the Indians, he is entirely familiar with all their habits and peculiarities, and by reason of that fact, together with his well known executive ability, is especially fitted to deal with them. This is the first time in the history of the State that the President has gone outside of the Baptist Church to fill that position. With the exception of the Duckwater Agency, in Elko county, the Baptist Church has always had the management of the Indians in this State, and the agents were usually men from the East, to whom the Indian was an enigma they were never quite able to solve; hence, their labors amounted to little more than that of dishing out rations to their wards. The Journal predicts that Mr. Gibson's administration of the Nevada Agency will be a vast improvement upon any and all that have preceded him.

Runaway Accident.

About 8 o'clock yesterday morning Mr. Frank Lee and Miss Ada Finlayson, a teacher at Peavine, were driving along Commercial Row with a buggy and span of horses, when opposite the Palace Hotel, a tin can got caught in one of the wheels which frightened the horses and they started off at break-neck speed. The team turned into West street where the occupants of the buggy were thrown out, and then continued into First street and was finally captured in Chinatown, the horses unimpaired but the buggy smashed into smithereens. Neither of the parties were hurt but procured another team and proceeded to Peavine as though nothing had happened. This escape from serious injury, if not from death, was almost miraculous.

A Boom in Stocks.

The middle stocks astonished the old chippers yesterday. Norcross advanced to 4 85, Chollar to 3, Potosi to 1 60, Alta 2 20, with all the others up from ten to fifty cents. The Summer "deal" the Journal mentioned the other day seems to have commenced in earnest. But remember that what goes up must come down.

Dr. Bergman will leave this morning for Dun Glen, in Humboldt county, to attend a man who was badly hurt in a mine at that place.

Will Benjamin is in from Hawthorne on a visit to old time Reno friends.

Mr. Rice, of Genoa, is in town.

We call attention to the letter of S. C. Hall, President of the Nevada Wool Growers Association, giving the reasons why he, a life-long Democrat, proposes to support the Republican ticket at the next election.

The northern stage had on nine passengers and lots of freight yesterday. Johnny was happy.

YOUNG MEN!—READ THIS.

THE VOLTAIC BELT CO., of Marshall, Mich., offer to send their celebrated ELECTRO-VOLTAIC BELT and other ELECTRIC APPLIANCES on trial for thirty days, to men (young or old) afflicted with nervous debility, loss of vitality and manhood, and all kindred troubles. Also for rheumatism, neuralgia, paralysis, and many other diseases. Complete restoration to health, vigor and manhood guaranteed. No risk is incurred as thirty days trial is allowed. Write them at once for illustrated pamphlet free.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. feb. 21-sw-1yr

When the blood moves sluggishly in the veins because it is loaded with impurities, an alternative is needed, as this condition of the vital fluid cannot last long without serious results. There is nothing better than Ayer's Sarsaparilla to purify the blood and impart energy to the system.

It Seems to Satisfy

A family want, and I wonder how we got along without Parker's Ginger Tonic. It cured me of nervous prostration, and I have used it since for all sorts of complaints in our family. Mrs. Jines, Albany.

Strength for Mind and Body.

There is more strength restoring power in a bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic than in a bushel of malt or a gallon of milk. This explains why invalids find it such a wonderful invigorant for mind and body.

Cleanliness and purity make Parker's Hair Balsam the favorite for restoring the youthful color to gray hair.

THE DEAD FRAUD.

His Story of a Wonderful Indian Adventure.

They were sitting in front of the Palace the other evening, watching the merry gamboling of some juvenile Putes and squaws, and the conversation naturally turned to the Indian question and eventually drifted into narratives of personal encounters with the red man. Some half a dozen blood curdling stories of adventures had been told, each exceeding the other in its hair elevating powers. An old man in corduroy breeches, blue dangle shirt and a broad brimmed felt hat sat quietly by, silently listening to these yarns as they were successively reeled off. After all the others had told their lies, the old man took his pipe from his mouth, deliberately knocked out the ashes on the heel of his boot, and said:

"I reckon, gentlemen, that I've had just about as sing'ler an adventure with Indians as any man as ever lived."

"What was it," they asked. "Tell us all about it?"

"Well, I don't mind tellin' yer, but I know yer won't believe me. I reckon its the most remarkable thing on record. Yer see, I was prospectin' down in South'n Arizona in '69, and one day I went up into a big canyon and was spoonin' among their crevices, and two or three times I got their color. I sorter got interested in my work and didn't think how long I'd been away from camp and as I looked up to take the sun and judge the time o'day, when sich a site met my eyes as I never seen before."

The old man stopped, deliberately filled his pipe, his auditors all the time growing impatient.

"Well, what did you see? Let's have it."

"Well," resumed the narrator, "around the sides of that canyon was ten thousand sage bushes."

He scratched a match and proceeded to light his pipe.

"Well, what of that?" asked an auditor.

"Wall, sir," said he, puffing slowly, "behind each of them sage bushes was an injun."

"And what did you do?"

"Now you jess wait. Don't get impatient. My first thought was to bolt like the devil down the canyon. Jess as I started, two or three thousand injuns sprung up right in front of me and he'did me off. Then I started up the right han' side an' I'm durned if two or three thousand didn't bob up thar. Then I started for the other side. I'll be doggoned if it wasn't the same thar. Then I started up the canyon. Jess thar same. Now, thinks I, I'll sell my life dearly. I pulled out my six-shooter—I hadn't got no cartridges with me—left 'em in camp. Now a man who'll go off prospectin' in a injin country without cartridges is a doggoned fool. My, one time I was—"

"Oh, darn your cartridges, go on with the story!" shouted an impatient listener.

"Wall, as I was sayin', I jist made up my mind that I'd sell my life dearly. So I jist pulled my gun and let 'em have it and every shot killed a injin."

The old man again paused, rapped the ashes out of his pipe on the arm of his chair, proceeded to fill it, lit a match which went out, then another and another which were successively blown out by the wind.

In the meantime his audience had become impatient almost to the verge of desperation.

"For God sake drop that pipe and tell us how you escaped," shouted one.

"Yes, how the devil did you get away?" said another excitedly.

The old man laid his pipe on his knee and looked at them in blank amazement.

"Escape? Git away? Why, how in hell could a man in sich a situation git away? I didn't git away. They killed me."

The audience arose from their chairs and vanished in the darkness, muttering something about a "dam'd old fraud," while the old man went into the saloon with a merry twinkle in his eye and said he "reckoned he'd take his straight this time."

Died of Opium.

Early Monday morning Charley Hudson, as he was known here, but whose real name was Chas. M. Backus, a son of the once famous minstrel by that name, was found in a room on Douglas alley in an unconscious condition from the effect of an overdose of opium. Medical aid was at once summoned, but the doctors pronounced the case hopeless. Except for a brief moment about midnight he lingered in an unconscious condition until 3 o'clock in the morning when he died. It is not known whether the poison was taken with suicidal intent or by accident. He was a native of Virginia, aged 27 years.

The little village of Tybo, in Nye county, was destroyed by fire last Saturday. John J. Olds was burned to death. The loss was $30,000.

Postmaster Adkison, of Virginia, was a passenger for the Bay last evening.

THE JEWEL "CONSISTENCY."

Why a prominent and Life-long Democrat will Vote the Republican Ticket.—Letter From S. C. Hall, President of the Nev Wool Growers Association.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—An article in an exchange referring to "Mr.——who has voted the Democratic ticket for thirty years, and is now a successful wool grower," is said to be directed to me. Assuming such to be the case I have no hesitancy in answering its questions.

1. "Why did you change your name from Democrat to Republican?"

Your question is awkwardly put, and I might answer that I have not "changed my name." Still, notwithstanding its ambiguity I presume you wish to know why I intend to vote the Republican ticket. Assuming that to do so involves a "change of name" it involves in me no change of principles. If the party with which I have acted thirty years on principles abandons those principles, and shows a tendency to take a diametrically opposite course to that which it has heretofore pursued, while the other party represents my sentiments on the same issues, I should be less than a free man if I adhered to the wrong simply through attachment to a mere party name. The Democratic party has never up to this time been a party of free trade. True it has contained a considerable free trade element but in numbers and influence too small for the accomplishment of their purpose. This element has unsuccessfully opposed the enactment of laws for the protection of our home manufactures and other industries, and so long as they remained a complaining minority, advocating their wild theory without effect upon the action of the party, and inasmuch as I believed in the principles of the party in many other respects, I saw no occasion for leaving it. But the tendency of the Democratic party towards free trade is, at this time unmistakable. The election of Carlisle as Speaker of the House, by a majority of its Democratic members, sounded the note of alarm. Since 1875 the Democrats have made several efforts, notably by the Morrison tariff bill of 1876, then by the Wood tariff bill in 1878, to destroy the protective features of our tariff, until the Democratic party, after much backing and filling, and exceptions in favor of particular localities and special interests, has become the constant enemy to the protective system as a means to our industrial development and growth. Carter Harrison, the present nominee for Governor of Illinois declared that "protection is robbery," and in this expression he but voices the sentiment of a large number of the most influential leaders of the Democracy, and a majority of its Representatives in Congress. This cry of a "Tariff for Revenue only" is a sham. It means nothing; but as it is now indorsed by the rankest free traders to meet the present emergency, it can only be looked upon with suspicion. Let the leaders of the Democratic party, the Wattersons, Carlises, Harrisons (Governatorial candidate and Congressman) steal into power under its thin disguise and they will have gained such a vantage ground in their fight for free trade that it will be difficult to dislodge them. The industries, manufactures which are sustained and are prosperous through the operations of the existing tariff will be paralyzed and many of them destroyed. Such a result can only be regarded by right thinking people as a national calamity. As I do not believe in free trade, and do believe in the protection of American industries, and as the Republican platform expresses my views, and the Republican party is sound on the issue, I see no other course for me to pursue but to continue to adhere to my life long principles, which on this occasion impel me to vote the Republican ticket.

There are other reasons not necessary to dwell upon, but I may say in this connection that I regard Mr. Blaine as the leading representative of the true American sentiment, a man who will reflect credit upon the nation, whose sole idea is the advancement of the material interest of this country, and through whose courage and statesmanship the United States will be held in great respect abroad, and who will not fritter away the rights of American citizens in foreign countries through the tedious and vacillating delay of red tape diplomacy, directed by a timidity that dare not frame or carry out a definite policy.

2. "What principle or controversy is there now between the two parties?" I think this question is sufficiently answered above. It is unnecessary to dwell upon other and lesser issues.

3. "Are there not high tariff and low tariff Democrats and high tariff and low tariff Republicans?" Most assuredly; but in the Democratic party the tail wags the dog, while in the Republican party the dog wags the tail.

4. "Were your motives pure, patriotic, and for the good of the whole country, or were they selfish and mercenary, and done for your own emolument and gain?"

I allow no man to impugn my motives, and your question is but little short of an insult. Nevertheless I shall attribute it to your ignorance of the amenities that should prevail among gentlemen, and should above all things be observed by a journalist, and reply. Your evident intention is to convey the impression that I am prompted in my course solely because I am a wool-grower, and I readily accept the issue. It is true that a protective tariff is to my interest, and so, I claim, it is to yours and to the interest of every man, woman and child in the country. But if my business is threatened I can sell out and embark in some other enterprise. Yet how is it with the hundreds and thousands of operatives in the wool and cotton factories, the iron and coal mines, the laborers in the timber forests of the great Northwest, and the thousand and one other industries that are prosperous through the operations of the existing tariff. They would be rendered utterly helpless and left destitute and starving, if the enterprises which give support to thousands and their families should cease. The great manufacturing enterprises of this country have made it the wonder and admiration of the world. Manufacturers have been fostered from the very existence of the Government. The utterances of Washington, Hamilton and Jefferson show that they were greatly impressed with the necessity of diversifying our industries, fostering our manufactures, and rendering ourselves, in fact as well as in form, independent of Great Britain. In his first annual address to Congress Washington said:

"The safety and interest of the people require that they should promote such manufactures as tend to render them independent of others for essentials, especially military supplies."

Clay, Calhoun, Jackson, Webster and the greatest statesmen in the history of the country have avowed the same principles and assisted to carry them into execution so that I do not think I need apologize for my sentiments. The high protective tariff of 1828 gave our manufactures an impetus, and although it has been variously modified from time to time as the exigencies of the case seemed to demand, they have been sustained by the strong arm of protection until they have achieved a magnitude that is almost beyond comprehension. Without this support the cheap goods of England and other foreign countries would flood our markets, these industries would cease to be profitable on our soil, one of the greatest elements of our country's pride and glory would be destroyed, and the tombstones of ruin and desolation would mark the grave of our previous prosperity. This I firmly believe, and as it has been the belief of my life it is not likely that I should change my views, to adhere to a party name, which does not represent them. Respectfully,
S. C. HALL.

FROM THE PRESIDENT OF BAYLOR UNIVERSITY.

"Independence, Texas, Sept. 25, 1882.

Gentlemen:

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Has been used in my household for three reasons:—

- 1st. To prevent falling out of the hair.
- 2d. To prevent too rapid change of color.
- 3d. As a dressing.

It has given entire satisfaction in every instance. Yours respectfully,
WM. CAREY CRANE."

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is entirely free from, uncleanly, dangerous, or injurious substances. It prevents the hair from turning gray, restores gray hair to its original color, prevents baldness, preserves the hair and promotes its growth, cures dandruff and all diseases of the hair and scalp, and is, at the same time, a very superior and desirable dressing.
